FOREWORD

I congratulate you on the compilation of the "Mothers Touch" book. It is a valuable piece of work that re-establishes Indian traditional care & knowhow performed during the postpartum period in our society. This ancestral knowledge is of great value to society as well as the Indian rural community.

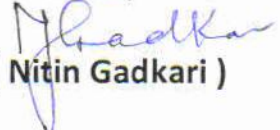

As a Minister of Micro, Small & Medium Enterprises, I recognize the level of research for the project resulting in the "Mothers Touch" book. It will not only act as a source of knowledge, this book also acts as a reference point upon which a new industry can flourish. Highlighted by this work is the potential for job creation being enormous for the financially vulnerable sections of rural society.

I have no doubt that this will positively impact lives and livelihoods of thousands of rural women & new mothers. Your focus on Mother and Child Well-being after Post-Partum, will certainly highlight the importance of effective recovery of mothers after childbirth. The book may play a pivotal role in re-introducing these things back to the Indian culture and impress the wider world.

I laud the efforts taken by you and extend good wishes for this publication and look forward to your many future endeavors.

With Regards.
